To the friends of Temperance and the public generally we now make our appeal in behalf of this paper. The publisher feeling it a matter of importance to the interest of the Temperance cause in the District, as well as the general interest of the cause, and having been, as he conceives, Providentially placed in a situation at this time when he can mingle this interest with that of the business men, and thereby render a double service to the community, and still further open a medium of communication by which our principles may be extended far and wide, at a cheap rate, he has purchased a printing establishment, so as not only to be able to put a daily paper regularly to press, but also a weekly; and still further, be able to do any other printing the public may be pleased to have done; and he assures them that they shall have no cause of complaint. He has made arrangements by which he can devote his time to the interest of the office and the paper; and, having employed Mr. Charles W.
Fenton, who will be always on the spot, to conduct the printing, he has no doubt but that general satisfaction will be given. We shall make arrangements to have the earliest news; also the proceedings of Congress.

We wish all who are indebted for the paper up to this time to pay up, as the affairs of the tri-weekly must be closed. They will perceive that we are about to give them a better paper, double the number, at the same price.

While the "COLUMBIAN FOUNTAIN" will be devoted to the cause of Temperance, its columns will be enriched by original articles on subjects calculated to interest, instruct, and benefit its readers. It is intended so to blend variety, amusement, and instruction, as that the various tastes of its patrons may be (as far as it is practicable) gratified.
Commerce, Literature, and Science, and every other subject of interest, not inconsistent with Temperance and morality, will receive the earnest attention of the publisher.
Nothing of a sectarian, political, or personal character will be admitted.

ROGER DUTTON; OR, THE TRUE PROPHECY.

"How did you come here, then?" Take him, Walter and Fitzburg, and pump upon him till he is sober; and then bring him to me in the hall. We must find out what all this means."

The Earl's orders were soon obeyed; and a considerable portion of cold water poured in a continuous stream upon the unfortunate fiddler's head and face, so far restored him to sense and discretion, that when brought into the presence of the Earl again, he was enabled to give something like a coherent account of Roger Dutton's proceedings.

"By the Lord!" cried the Earl, when he had heard the whole story, "the boy's mad; but it's a gallant sort of madness, after all.
Seventeen hundred fiddlers, and harpers, and mountebanks, and tumblers—"

"And cobbler—my lord, and cobbler!" interrupted the man; "we have a great show of cobbler among us, and every cobbler brings his awl."

"And this is all he has got to fight an army of Welshmen with," said the Earl, thoughtfully. "Well, great things are often done with small means, and clean work comes out of dirty hands, they say. But how came you to stray away from the rest my man?"

"Why, I was sent," replied the fiddler.
"I was the soberest and most discreet of the whole host, so gay Roger Dutton sent me to find my way here, and tell you that you would be delivered to-morrow, or he'd be food for the ravens."

"He's a fine fellow, by St. James—he is a fine fellow!" was the reply.

"You see I can speak some Welsh, my lord," continued the man, and so I feigned, when I got in among the Welshmen, to have come in from the country, just to see what they were about, and I sat down in one of their rings, and played them a tune, and sung. It wasn't Roger Dutton's going to fight; but then they would make me take some more mead, and I got fuddled and fell fast asleep. I woke by knocking my nose against the strings of my viol, and finding them all sleeping around me, I filched a knife or two, just for the sake of companionship, and then came on here the best way I could.

The fiddler's story was quite true. Roger Dutton commenced his march a little after two o'clock; and about six, they fell in with some cart-loads of mead, that were going to the camp of the besiegers. Neither the mead nor the drivers were suffered to escape, and this fresh supply of liquor, in addition to a quantity of strong drink which they had brought with them in bottles, so completely intoxicated the greater part of his host, that gay Roger Dutton dared not risk an engagement with the enemy that night. Happily for himself, the thick forest that lay between him and Rothelan sheltered him from the Welshmen; and, aided by the sober part of his force and men-at-arms, he herded the rest in the valley, though it was not without great trouble that he prevented them from straggling about in such manner as to give intimation of their proximity to the enemy's forces.
Night, however, came on, just as he was struggling with these difficulties; and after some brawling, and some singing, and finishing the rest of the strong liquors which they had brought with them, man after man fell under the influence of the drowsy god, leaving Roger Dutton, and a hundred and fifty of his more temperate or strong-headed companions, to keep an anxious watch during the hours of darkness.

Anxiety to relieve the mind of Mary de Lacy, however, certainly induced Roger Dutton to commit a very imprudent act, in choosing out of the few who could speak Welsh, a messenger to bear the news of his approach to his friends in the castle.
The result was better, as we have seen, than might have been anticipated; and it certainly is a fact, that we very often see the most rash and heedless proceedings which any one might be tempted to prophesy would produce the most disastrous consequences, succeed perfectly, while prudence and wisdom are baffled and disappointed.

CHAPTER VI.

THE RESCUE.

Happily for Roger Dutton, at that season of the year, night tucks up the tail of her gloomy mantle, so that it is not allowed to sweep the face of the earth for any great length of time; and his weary watch was ere long relieved, by seeing the gray dawn begin to peep over the hills. Allan, the harper, soon roused the fiddler and the drummer, who had been their great allies from the first, and running through the multitudes, who lay stretched among the fern and heath, they contrived to rouse a great number of the slumberers by sundry cuffs and pushes, kicks and shouts, none of the most tender or delicate description. Up started the motley group, at length, rubbing their eyes, stretching their limbs, yawning till their jaws cracked, and gazing around them with a somewhat surprised and wondering air. As few, however, of the men there present ever slept over one or two nights together in the same bed, the surprise was very soon overcome, especially as one or two mellow voices began to take up the song with which they had marched along, of—

"Roger Dutton's going to fight, In his doublet and his hose,
Who is wrong and who is right No one cares and no one knows."

"Hurra, hurra, for gay Roger Dutton!" cried several voices, but several continued to stretch and yawn; and one man, who had an awful headache from the quantity, and variety of his potations, thought fit to declare that he should like something to eat.

"By the back-bone of Judas, you must fight for it, then," exclaimed Allan, the harper; "but you will very soon have an opportunity of roasting a whole Welshman, if you like, and eat him, too—nobody will stop you!"

"Ah, we shall find plenty of provisions in Rothelan," cried Roger Dutton, "of a better quality than that. Never fear! never fear. Let us drub the Welshmen but for the sake of an appetite, and then we'll have breakfast, and set the wine-tap running."

"Hurra for Roger Dutton!" cried a dozen voices.

"Roger Dutton's going to fight!" sung forth another.

"Beat your drum, Hal!" cried a third.

"Some one has stolen my hood!" exclaimed a fourth.

"It has crept away by itself!" cried a companion.

"The wind has blown it to pieces," rejoined another, with a laugh.

"No, no—there it is!" cried one of the fiddlers; don't you see Tom has got it on a pole, and made a banner of it."

"It's the fiddler's banner—it's the fiddler's banner!" cried a number of voices.

"The barber's, more like," was the reply, "for it is mounted on a pole."

When a saint dies, he leaves all his bad behind, and carries all his good with him; and when a sinner dies, he leaves all his good and carries all his bad.

It was the saying of an eminent divine, that he had found more good in "bad" people and more bad in "good" people than ever he expected.

"HE THAT WOULD HAVE A FRIEND MUST BE FRIENDLY."

THE PRINTERS all say that the way to obtain a good run of customers is to advertise your goods and merchandise in the newspapers.
Therefore, L. S. BECK & SON would most respectfully call the attention of their friends and the public generally to their stock of new and second-hand House-furnishing Goods, Pennsylvania avenue, south side, between 9th and 10th streets, as we intend to sell as cheap as the cheapest, if not cheaper.

We would just say to all, "Come and see." We have on hand, and intend keeping, a good supply of new and second-hand house-furnishing goods, too numerous to mention.

Rev. J. G. MORRIS, D. D., Lecturer on Zoology.
WM. ALBAUGH, A. M., Tutor and Teacher in Preparatory Department.
H. R. GEIGER, Teacher of Writing.

The course of studies in Pennsylvania College is as extensive and substantial as that of any institution in the country. The Preparatory Department provides for instruction in all the branches of a thorough English business education, in addition to the Elements of the Mathematics and Classical Literature. The College course is arranged in the four classes usual in the institutions of this country.

The government of the students is as energetic as their circumstances seem to require. They attend at least two recitations a day, and the Faculty contemplate increasing them to three, Church and Bible Class on the Sabbath, and are visited in their rooms so frequently as to preclude the danger of any great irregularities. It is believed no institution in the United States has more exemplary young men in connexion with it. They are all required to lodge in the College edifice, special cases excepted.

The annual expenses are—for board, tuition and room rent, during the winter session $61 87 1-2; for the summer session, $41 87 1-2; washing, $10; wood, $3 00. Total expense, $116 75. Boarding can be had in town at $1 25 per week.

There are two vacations in the year, commencing on the third Thursdays of April and September; each of five weeks continuance.

The summer session will commence on Thursday, the 22d of May. The annual commencement takes place on the third Thursday in September.

The Trustees have recently made various arrangements which will increase the efficiency of the Institution. They have increased the number of Professors and provided for the most ample instruction of the students.

Professor Baugher and Haupt are prepared to board boys and to exercise a special supervision over their studies and deportment, and Parents who may prefer placing their sons under their care, will be secure in regard to their proper management, under arrangements such as pertain to the family circle.

view, embraces every subject connected with Commerce, Manufactures and Political Economy, as follows: Commercial Legislation; Commercial History and Geography; Mercantile Biography; Descriptive, Statistical and Historical Accounts, of the various commodities which form the subject of Mercantile transactions; Port Charges; Tariffs; Customs and Excise Regulations; Commercial Statistics of the United States and the different countries of the world, with which we have intercourse, including their Physical Character, Population, Productions, Exports, Imports, Seaports, Monies, Weights, Measures, Finance and Banking Associations, and Enterprises connected with Commerce, embracing Fisheries, Incorporated Companies, Railroads, Canals, Steamboats, Docks, Post Offices, &c.; Principles of Commerce, Finance and Banking, with Practical and Historical Details and Illustrations; Commercial Law, and Mercantile Liabilities and Decisions of Courts in the United States and Europe, including Insurance, Partnership, Principal and Agent, Bills of Exchange, Sale, Guaranty, Bankruptcy, Shipping and Navigation, &c., and whatever else shall tend to develop the resources of the country and the world, and illustrate the various topics bearing upon Commerce and Commercial Literature.

It has been, and will continue to be, the aim of the Editor and Proprietor of the Merchants' Magazine, to avoid everything of a party, political, or sectional bias or bearing, in the conduct of the work—opening its pages to the free and fair discussion of antagonistic doctrines connected with the great interests of Commerce, Agriculture, Manufactures and the Currency.

Complete sets of the Merchants' Magazine, embracing 12 semi-annual volumes, of about 600 large octavo pages each, bringing it down to June, 1844, inclusive, may be obtained at the Publisher's Office, 142 Fulton street, New York, at the subscription price.

Publishers of newspapers in the United States, by giving this advertisement two or three insertions and remitting Two Dollars to the Proprietor, will be entitled to the Magazine for one year.
